

Creative Learning 1-day workshop

Linko Management Consultancy TB was founded by Tom de Winter. Tom studied social sciences, Authentic Haptonomy, and cranio-sacrale therapy. Tom has a practice in Amsterdam and Oosterbeek, near Arnhem The Netherlands. Tom has over 30 years of experience as an international workshop trainer for companies and members of the public. In his workshops Tom guides participants in their mental, emotional and spiritual development by means of bodywork.

Many of us would like to speak several languages, or to solve difficult scientific problems, or to know more about history, politics, economics and philosophy. Yet because of the way we learned at school we are not naturally encouraged to start new study.

It is a misunderstanding that the only way to acquire new knowledge is to memorize, drilling ourselves (military analogy) to put the information into our brains. Creative Learning involves our whole being, mind, body and spirit. Studying is most effective when done with pleasure, under good circumstances and using all our senses and biology.

Goal

The purpose of this one day workshop is to make learning more pleasant and effective. We will connect the material to positive experiences using our whole body, instead of using only our brains.

Contents of the workshop

We pay attention to the preparation of body and mind (food and fitness), and to good physical surroundings (light and fresh air). We will learn to concentrate using the method of Alpha Meditation.

We use dance, music, declamation (words said to music) and fantasy games to evoke well-being experiences. We will use all our senses (smelling, touch, sight, hearing and tasting) in a creative and playful way in order to make studying joyful.

During this workshop participants will be introduced to Mind-mapping and Speed-Reading, modern methods for making any studying more satisfying and efficient.

When a workshop takes place in Eastern Europe, a local language translator is present.
